BILL WOULD

POWER PLANTSSenator Liederbach Introduces Measure of Electric Institution

AS ECONOMY MOVE

Dunn County Plan, Would Let
State Sell to Private Concerns

Consolidation of the power plant now maintained at the state capitol with the one operated at the penitentiary is proposed in a bill introduced by Senator Liederbach. It is said, in the interests of economy. Both plants it is advanced are inadequate for the power, and light demands of the two institutions and to supply the street car line now operated by the state.

Those who are interested in the project in discussing the measure said that it was the intention to use the power from this plant to light up a proposed paved highway from the penitentiary to the Bismarck-Mandan bridge now being constructed.

Plan Highway
There is now an application to create a state highway from the penitentiary to the bridge, those back of the bill point out and they say that the white way planned for this highway could be supplied with current from the consolidated light and power plant at the penitentiary.

The bill further provides for a bond issue of $250,000 to enlarge the plant at the penitentiary and gives the state the power to enter the commercial field in the distribution of light and power.

Two Plants Now
Under the present arrangement, it is pointed out, the state maintains two light and power plants, duplicating machinery, fuel and effort when the same service can be given from a central plant.

The two bills were referred to the state affairs committee for action.

"COME TO OUR WRESTLING SHOW!"

Mrs. Marshall Field III, and John Frebery, a heavyweight wrestler who'll take part in her benefit exhibition, with one of the little cripples who'll be helped by the funds raised.

"Work Makes Me Human," Says Mrs. Field

(N. E. A. Staff Special.)
Chicago, Feb. 8.—"Work makes me human—and you have to be human to be happy."

Which is Mrs. Marshall Field III's explanation of why she is promoting a wrestling exhibition for the benefit of crippled children.

She has given up all social affairs to devote her whole time to the benefit. The wife of the young merchant prince has an office in a deserted store building.

Sometimes when wrestlers and their managers come to talk matters over they let some training camp conversation slip. But Mrs. Field appears not to notice.

"It all helps to make me human," she says. "Of course I could turn the work all over to someone else, and still get the glory, but—what real benefit would I derive? None."

"And then the children—there is nothing in the world so appealing as a crippled child. Just to cuddle one

CONDEMNATION
POWERS GIVEN
CITY BY BILLGroup of Bills Affecting Local Water Controversy Before Legislature

Bills have been introduced into the legislature giving the city power to condemn the plant of the Bismarck Water company, thus bringing the water controversy before the senate and the house.

The bills were introduced in the senate by Senator Garberg of Adams, and in the house by Representative Semling of Burleigh. They are three in number.

Two of them are intended to give the city of Bismarck power to start condemnation proceedings against the water works. The federal court recently held that cities did not have the power to condemn public utilities.

The third bill was framed to give cities the right to pay for a water works system by special assessment. There is a question whether under the present laws this can be done.

After Visit With Son Father
Will Return Home With Good News

This is a little old world after all. And thereby a tale.

Joel Harberg, Jr., was not drowned in the Missouri river but instead he and his father were reunited today after Joel Harberg, Sr., of New York, arrived in Bismarck expecting to engage men to recover the body of his boy who had been reported to them as having drowned.

It all happened this way: Mr. Harberg, Sr., is a trusted employee of the Dexter Foider company, a New York corporation, with whom the Tribune company has had business relations for many years.

When news came from Bismarck supposedly from a comrade of young Harberg's that his boy had been drowned while attempting to "save another youth, the father and mother were frantic. The Dexter company wrote The Tribune apprising them that Mr. Harberg would arrive in Bismarck today.

Mr. Harberg, Sr., arrived here on the noon train and immediately got in touch with Chris Martinson and Sheriff Welch and it was only a few hours afterwards that Harberg was located at the river. Explanations followed and there was a happy reunion. The mother was wired immediately and the father will return to New York tomorrow.

New York, Feb. 8.—Frank P. Walsh, counsel for Thomas J. Mooney, convicted of murder in San Francisco, in connection with the preparedness day bomb explosions, early today telephoned San Francisco authorities, appraising them of an alleged confession of one of the witnesses that he had given perjured testimony and that he is investigating an alleged conspiracy to convict Mooney. The witness named was John MacDonald, now a resident of Trenton, N. J., with whom Mr. Walsh had a long conference last night.

Charges Framing
According to Mr. Walsh, he in a long typewritten statement, declares that the case was framed. He swears that he couldn't identify Mooney as the man he had seen with a suit case prior to the preparedness day parade. He said District Attorney Flickert, the San Francisco prosecutor, had forced him to make the identification. MacDonald is alleged to have stated that he was coached with other witnesses as to testimony to be given.

Commutes Sentence
He said at the Mooney trial that at the instant of a certain district attorney that he changed his time in his testimony to break Mooney's alibi. Nine persons were killed and Mooney was sentenced to death and Billings to life imprisonment.

Wilson commuted Mooney's sentence to life imprisonment. Charges that his conviction was the result of a frame-up were made recently by Policeman Draper of San Francisco, another prominent witness.

Brinton Invites Self in at Meeting.

The bars were let down today by the Industrial Commission in the house investigation into the state industries.

When the hearing resumed at 9:30 a. m. in the courtroom, Ed Sinkler, of Minot, who has been present daily as advisory counsel to administration men, rose and said:

"Mr. Chairman, Mr. Cathro desires to go upon the witness stand and produce all of the records of every name, kind, description, desired by the committee."

Mr. Cathro was the first witness called. The contempt proceedings, which the committee voted to institute against Mr. Cathro yesterday when he said the Industrial Commission had forbidden the production of certain records in the courtroom, will be dropped, it was decided by unanimous vote of the committee at the conclusion of the hearing.

Cathro Explains Stand
Mr. Cathro, when called to the stand, made a statement declaring that the committee had not been refused access to the records at the bank, that he had nothing to conceal, that there was no defalcation and that the attitude of the commission had been one of not wishing to do anything that might disturb public confidence in banks.

During J. W. Brinton's testimony he asserted that Mr. Townley had said he wanted Mr. Cathro to head the bank because "he has agreed to sail with us."

Upon the announcement of Mr. Sinkler, Mr. Cathro was called to the stand by Mr. Murphy.

The audit report of Bishop, Brissman and company on the Bank of North Dakota is such that he had no reason to believe it was not substantially correct, Mr. Cathro said, in response to questioning.

MOTHER ASKS SEARCH FOR CAN LEFT BY HAROLD

Mrs. Svensgaard Seeks Information Regarding Red Gasoline Receptacle

NO NEWS OF BOY

Police and Red Cross Aiding in Search for Bismarck High Student

No light has yet been thrown upon the mysterious disappearance last Tuesday afternoon of Harold Svensgaard, a Bismarck high school boy. He was last seen at garage of the Bismarck Motor company, where he purchased a gallon of gasoline and left carrying the red can.

Mother Sleepless.
Harold's mother, who has scarcely slept since the news was brought to her, has sent out an appeal for information regarding this can. She thinks that it may give her information that will lead to the boy's location.

"I can just find that can. I will be satisfied," said his mother this morning, suppressing the tears that dimmed her eyes. "I can sleep then."

Seeks Information.
"Now I don't know anything. Anything might have happened to him. I must find that can."

His mother's telephone number is 160 and she wants anybody finding such a can or hearing anything about one to let her know as soon as possible.

Harold wore when last seen at Bertsch's garage, a gray checked cap, long dark coat over a khaki-colored sweater, blue serge trousers and tan shoes. He is of fair complexion, with light hair and blue eyes and a pleasant, mild countenance. He is 5 feet, six inches tall.

Was Studious.
He was studious and was not given to any wild wanderings which would indicate that he would be likely to respond to the call of wanderlust. None of his fellow students at the high school can believe that he simply left home.

Police all over this section of the country have been notified and the Red Cross is aiding in the search.

How to Capture Beaver.
As compared with the otter or mink, the beaver is a very slow swimmer. His front legs hang by his side, and he uses only his webbed hind feet for purposes of swimming. It is easy to capture one in a canoe if you can find him in shallow water. He is a most determined fighter, but clumsy and easy to handle. If he could get hold of you with his teeth he would almost take a leg off, so you need to watch him sharply. The way to seize him is by the tail.

Airplanes Will Help Surveyors.
In the arid wastes of Australia, where travel is exceedingly difficult and painful, and is like regions in the deserts of Africa, airplanes will make it easy to survey more square miles in a month than could be seen by means of any land vehicle in a year. It will be possible to get a true, bird's-eye view of every part of the earth's surface. No dangers involved in such work are likely to daunt men who have faced and survived the perils of aerial fighting.

Mr. Talcott was walking from the south side of the city to his home at 1014 Broadway.

A report of the robbery was made at once to the police station but Mr. Talcott and three patrolmen failed to locate the robber after a search through the park. Mr. Talcott said the robber was a short dark man, and wore a short dark coat. He concealed the lower part of his face with a mask. Mr. Talcott said he did not see which way the man went after the robbery.

Evolution of Clothes Terms.

Dozens and dozens of clothes terms there are that indicate the evolution of clothes among our ancestors. Petticoat, which has been used as a not very respectful synonym for women in general, was a garment for men originally, and was the undercoat worn beneath the heavier overcoat. It was fairly long, and eventually the word came to be applied to the garments that evolved from this "petti," or small coat.

Beliefs Concerning Sneezing.

According to Aristotle, if a man was sick sneezing once forbode his death, but sneezing twice his recovery. If the patient was a woman the rule worked the opposite way. A traveler in the woods was threatened with an attack by brigands if he sneezed once, while sneezing twice presaged a happy journey. As a rule, the person sneezing twice in succession will be lucky, but unlucky if it occurs once.

Crab in Oyster Shell.

A perfectly formed but small crab, about the size of the end of a person's thumb was once found in an oyster shell. The crab had evidently been swallowed by the oyster, but presumably the crab proved too much for the oyster, as there was no oyster in the shell when it was opened.

Peru Sparsely Populated.

A territory on the Pacific ocean approximately 1,400 miles in length and 700 miles in width is occupied by Peru. The territory extends over 670,000 square miles, with a population that is estimated at 4,500,000, or, approximately, 6.8 to the square mile.

If paint brushes have been allowed to get dry and hard, they can be softened in the following manner: Heat some vinegar to boiling point and allow the brushes to simmer in it for about ten minutes. Then wash them well in strong soapsuds.

STUDY COST OF RAISING GRAIN SAYS MEREDITH

Statistics on Production Sorely Needed, Says Cabinet Officer

Madison, Wis., Feb. 7.—Secretary of Agriculture Meredith, told Wisconsin farmers gathered at the University of Wisconsin, to study marketing conditions for farm products. He said the greatest need of the farmer today was cost statistics.

The whole problem of costs of distribution of different commodities should be carefully studied until a reasonable and just cost has been obtained.

"With the cost of production and the cost of distribution known, with statistics on production and movement of commodities, it should be possible for any intelligent producer or middleman to determine just what a commodity is worth in all steps of the process of distribution."

Mr. Meredith frankly criticized the farmers for their lack of foresight.

SOUTH DAKOTA TO JOIN SISTER STATE IN AID

Will Memorialize Congress for Federal Assistance for Seed

Pierre, S. D., Feb. 8.—Expressing sympathy for the condition in which the people of North Dakota find themselves, the South Dakota legislature will express the wish that the farmers of that state may receive assistance from the federal government to the end that they receive sufficient seed and feed to plant a normal acreage for the season of 1921 if the concurrent resolution introduced by Representative Walker of Stanley county is adopted by both houses.

The resolution was drawn upon receipt of a communication from the North Dakota legislature which read in part as follows:

"Whereas, a critical situation exists in much of that territory between the western boundary of Minnesota and the Rocky mountains, in that within this territory there are large numbers of farmers who in the aggregate have millions of acres under cultivation, but who have not sufficient seed and feed for the planting of the 1921 crop, owing to drought, grasshopper damage and high labor costs; and whereas

"Unless federal aid is forthcoming millions of these productive acres will not be cropped at this time when the production of agricultural products is recognized as a factor of vital importance to the welfare of the nation;

"Be it resolved by the legislature of the state of North Dakota, that we do hereby memorialize the congress of the United States and respectfully urge that congress take immediate action toward furnishing the means whereby the farmers of this section may be provided with federal aid to the end that they may receive sufficient seed and feed to plant a normal acreage for the season of 1921."

"Mr. Walker's resolution in part is as follows:

"Be it resolved that while we entertain the greatest of sympathy for the people of our sister state, this state is in the opposite condition, and as our farmers are in the position of having a large surplus of all kinds of grain, which they are seeking a market for it is our earnest wish that the farmers of North Dakota receive the asked for assistance from the federal government as this relief will undoubtedly furnish a market for some of the surplus grain held on the farms of this state."

CHICAGO BOARD OF TRADE PLANS NEW BUILDING

Chicago, Ill., Feb. 8.—Plans are being completed by a special committee of the Chicago Board of Trade for construction of a new $6,000,000 home to replace the present quaint old structure which is one of the city's most interesting landmarks. Cost of building materials according to President Joseph P. Griffin, has delayed the project for the last few years.

A check went up from a crowd one winter day back in 1837 when the cornerstone of the nine-story granite structure that has since been the hub of the world's grain trade, was swung into place. The streets were festooned with vari-colored paper streamers and the blare of brass bands resounded through the downtown district.

Into the thick copperplate corner-store box was placed many documents which told a cryptic story of Chicago's growth as a grain market. These musty records include the bill of lading of the first grain shipment east. It took place one Indiana brig came back in 1837 when the little brig Cecilia, poked her nose out of the early morning haze of Lake Michigan and later turned homeward with 1,675 bushels of wheat.

Nine years later, in 1846, when Chicago received its first telegraph message, the Chicago Board of Trade was organized by a handful of merchants. With the passing of years the flow of grain to Chicago rapidly increased and greater market facilities became necessary. In 1884 a building site was purchased for $40,000 and work was promptly begun on the picturesque structure with its high windows and glistening clock tower, which nestles today amid a group of modern skyscrapers.

Just when work of dismantling the old building will begin is a question. That it will be under way during the administration of President Griffin is considered certain by grain men. The new building will have a floor space at least as large as the present floor which is 141 by 160 feet and upon which 400,000,000 bushels of cash grain, grain on the tracks and in elevators ready for immediate delivery, is sold annually.

JANE WILKES TO SEE HER 22nd INAUGURATION

MRS. VAN BUREN, MRS. RUTHERFORD, MRS. HAYES, MRS. JOHN TYLER, MRS. BENJAMIN HARRISON, JANE WILKES

Daughter of Famous Admiral
Saw Van Buren Take Office

Expects to Enjoy Herself at Coming Harding Ceremonies

Washington, Feb. 8.—When Warren G. Harding takes office on March 4, as twenty-ninth president of the United States Miss Jane Wilkes of Washington expects to attend her twenty-second inauguration.

Miss Wilkes was born in 1828. She probably has been present at more inaugural ceremonies than any other living person, for in the entire history of the country there have been only twenty-eight, and Miss Wilkes has witnessed twenty-one of these.

Her first inauguration, the first inauguration of a president, was that of Martin Van Buren. "He took office in '37. I was nine years old, just the impressionable age."

"The ceremonies were held in the capitol. They were to have been outside, but the weather turned bad. I remember it was considered a very grand affair. The retiring president and Mr. Van Buren went up to the capitol in a carriage drawn by four horses."

Miss Wilkes is the daughter of the Rear Admiral Wilkes, U. S. N., of the Mexican and Civil wars. As Lieutenant Wilkes he headed an Antarctic expedition sent out by the government in 1839, and is famous historically for having discovered and charted the Antarctic continent. And Wilkes it was who took Mason and Slidell off the British mail packet "Trent" as they were on their way to said Miss Wilkes, "particularly during President Tyler's administration. I was there so many times I can't remember."

"When Miss Wilkes was a young girl her father bought the historical Madison House, now occupied by the Coastline club, just a square from the White House."

"I remember my first visit to that house, and my first introduction to the famous Dolly," Miss Wilkes recalled with a twinkle. "I was so scared at England during the Civil war to intercede for recognition of the Confederacy."

Played at White House. As the daughter of such an officer, Jane Wilkes, now a lovely old lady with snowy hair, has been an important social figure in the most exclusive life of the nation. She remember's playing at the White House with a little girl.

"There used to be lots of parties at the White House for children," her appearance I tried to hide behind mother's skirts.

"She was very tall and wore her jet black hair plastered down in ringlets over her forehead. And she wore a white turban wound round and round her head."

"It was the custom then for ladies to put on turbans when going to receive company grandly."

Knew Lincoln Well. Miss Wilkes knew President Lincoln very well. General McClellan, Lincoln's chief of staff, lived just round the corner from Madison House and Miss Wilkes says the president often walked over to the general's.

On his way it was his habit to stop and talk with Admiral Wilkes' wife and daughter.

"If you just looked at Lincoln," says Miss Wilkes, "he was an ugly man. But if you talked with him, seeing his eyes and hearing his voice, he became beautiful."

Miss Wilkes says that of the twenty-one inaugurations she has attended that held for President Taylor was the most elaborate, while in a special way the administrations of President Cleveland led all others.

ISSUE MAGAZINE. Minot, N. D., Feb. 8.—The first number of Parks and Recreation, the magazine which will be published quarterly at Minot by the American Association of Park Superintendents, has just been issued. It contains matter of interest to many besides park superintendents.

Will O. Doolittle, superintendent of parks in Minot, is the managing editor of the publication, whose headquarters are at Minot, having been appointed to that position by the association at its convention last year.

A feature of the current number is an article entitled "What the Northwest is Doing for Motor Tourists," written by Will E. Holbein, secretary of the North Dakota Good Roads association, and H. F. Dooley, secretary of the North Dakota division of the Roosevelt Highway association. Accompanying the article are views of the Minot and Larimore parks showing tourist accommodations.

Why Are Skin Diseases So Difficult to Overcome?

When your skin breaks out with itching eruptions, tetter, rash, eczema, psoriasis, or other terrifying disorders, temporary relief will do you but little good, for soon all the itching and irritation breaks out afresh with renewed fury, and you soon realize that local remedies such as ointments, salves and similar treatment will never rid you of your trouble.

These troubles originate in the blood, and if you expect real substantial relief you must treat them through the blood.

The best remedy for this purpose is S.S.S., the fine old blood remedy that purifies the blood of disease germs, and thus restores the skin to a normal and healthy condition.

Begin taking S.S.S. today, and write a complete history of your case, and our medical director will give you expert advice without charge. Address Chief Medical Adviser, 161 Swift Laboratory, Atlanta, Ga.

It took the excessive war-induced centralization of economic and industrial functions in the hands of government to dramatize the essential fallacy of trying to substitute the politician for men functionally fit for the job in hand."—Glenn Frank, Editor of Century Magazine, in the Politics of Industry.

The clarity of Mr. Frank's reasoning was demonstrated by the efficiency of the petroleum industry during the war-time period.

Petroleum was the one basic industry which was left in the hands of men trained "for the job in hand" and their efficiency enabled the Allies to float to victory on a sea of oil.

The lessons learned during that period of stress have enabled the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) to increase its usefulness as a manufacturer of petroleum products.

The Standard Oil Company (Indiana) has learned that a minimum of political interference with economic processes is essential to this or any other highly specialized industry that it may continue to improve the service it renders.

The Standard Oil Company (Indiana) believes that the government of any business enterprise should come from within the industry, and that this government should be beneficial alike to capital, labor, management and the public.

The Standard Oil Company (Indiana) is organized upon a broad base to bring about this desirable condition.

The Board of Directors, who are responsible to the stockholders for the management of the Company's affairs, acknowledge the social obligation which the Company has assumed, and which they interpret to mean the efficient refining and distribution of essential petroleum products of superior quality, to make these products available everywhere, and at prices which put them within reach of all.

To accomplish this essential task, the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) has continually broadened the base of its operations, intrusting the administration of its complex and highly specialized business to men of acknowledged authority, ability and vision.

THE STATE'S OLDEST NEWSPAPER

(Established 1873)

MOON FARMING

Farming dates back to a time long before there were calendars. Priests and monks were the few people who possessed much education. They devoted a great deal of their time to the study of astronomy and possessed a fair knowledge of the subject.

Farmers came to these men for advice in their soil operations. When they wanted to plant corn or wheat or whatever the crop might be, the only definite guides the monks could give them were to plant during the varying moon stages. The moon was the farmer's calendar.

When the modern calendar was introduced it was used by townsmen.

Many farmers still use the moon signs. The custom has been handed down from one generation to another and is still in use.

Original purposes of the signs of the moon were in time forgotten or misinterpreted and the farmers began to ascribe to the moon supernatural powers.

It was in this way that the more recent generations adopted the moon doctrine and still cling to it in the present day.

From planting crops the doctrine spread to the slaughter of animals, shearing of sheep, cutting and pulling of the teeth of domestic animals and even to the setting of fence posts.

The nerve of some doctors, every time they write a prescription they try to horn in on the party.

PAYING FOR THE WAR

The war did much to increase taxation in every country, even in those not drawn into the battle line. You suspected as much, you say? To be sure. But did you suspect, too, that war taxation hits winners harder than it does losers?

Expressed in American dollars the British pay the highest war tax, $76.50 per capita at present exchange; at par it would be $107. The American pays $59.50 as his annual share of the war cost. The Frenchman pays $24.50, which under normal exchange rates would be $50.40. These three, as generally supposed, were among the winners in the late unpleasantness. Germany was on the losing side. At the average German pays a war tax of $6.50, at the present rate of exchange of German marks.

The Briton pays in American dollars, more than twelve times as much in war taxes as the German. Only the Italian, among the victors, pays fewer dollars, $3.30 per year, per person.

All this is because the German mark has fallen lower than the currency of the victors, and because the Italian lira is, among the victorious nations, at the lowest ebb.

However, it is authoritatively reported from Europe that the German has far more trouble with his war taxation of 474 marks than the Frenchman has with his 416 francs—and the reparations committee hasn't told the German the worst!

Cap Streeter, Chicago's D'Annunzio, never wrote a poem but stood by his balliwick longer than Gabe stood by Plume.

AN IRRITATING CUSTOM

Over in England where women are pretty well advanced in suffrage they have become tired of being referred to as the "weaker sex", and the "fair sex", and they have held a meeting about it.

Perhaps American women when they come to think on it, will espouse similar views.

The Women's Freedom League, of which Margaret Hodge is councillor, has tabooed the use of "fair sex" and "weaker sex" in reference to women.

The league has also set down as first principles that woman's judgment is as good as man's that women talk less than men, and that women can keep secrets.

"One irritating custom comes down from an age when to be fair was woman's first and foremost duty," Miss Hodge says, "and the only women who counted were for ornament. Women may be the weaker sex physically, but not morally."

Most men will admit that woman's judgment, too, is as good as man's and that's why husbands so often confer with their wives in business matters.

That women talk less than men—and more to the point when they do talk—is hardly open to argument.

When pressed women can "keep still in seven languages."

As for keeping secrets, that they do not is a comic paper joke, and men on both sides of the ocean know that wild horses cannot drag a secret from a woman if she cares to keep it.

There are cases on record where she'll fib rather than do it.

The German admiral's statement that England is a real enemy of the United States is regarded as Scheer nonsense—in England.

MOTORS AND MOVIES

The automobile and the silent drama have raced to the front in popular esteem. It is doubtful if the pioneers in these businesses by the use of their most optimistic imagination, would have attempted to forecast present conditions.

America is now making automobiles at the rate of two billions of dollars a year. The moving picture industry is fifth or sixth in the nation's business. Every twelfth person in the United States owns a motor car of some sort. There's a movie show almost in every town, on many corners of many towns and between blocks, too. The country joins with the city in autoing in to the home of the silent drama.

The motor and the movie are going hand in hand. The pleasure of the out-of-doors good of the auto ride to the physical is accentuated by the mental food of the ever-improving calories in the constantly-bettering screen entertainment.

There's a wonderful field yet ahead for both the motor and the movie. Experts in each are doing their utmost to give the people what they want. They will, in all probability, succeed. Life without "the car" or "the movie" nowadays, would lose much of its delight, surely.

The next batch of aeronauts that get lost will follow that homely bit of advice: "Do right but don't write."

THE INTERIOR SEA

During the remote period of the earth's history known as Cretaceous time North Dakota, along with the rest of the Great Plains region, was submerged beneath an interior sea, according to the United States Geological survey.

The earliest sediments of this ancient sea became the present rock formation known as the Dakota sandstone, which lies more than 2000 feet below the region around Bismarck.

Other bodies of sediments were subsequently laid down in this prehistoric sea, which finally withdrew from the region, the later formations being deposited along streams and in marshes and swamps.

The vegetation which grew in these marshes resulted in the lignite deposits which are today found in great beds underlying the area.

The fossils that have been found in this area show that as many as 400 species of plants lived at this early time, among them being a Sequoia which is related to the giant redwood of California, and the remains of which have been preserved in the rocks.

During this period of mild climatic conditions when swamp vegetation flourished, great land reptiles such as dinosaurs were abundant, especially the massive Triceratops, which must have roamed in large numbers along the shores of lake and swamp.

Illinois man named Lyon testified in his divorce suit and was fined $1,600. Yes, that's what he may have been doing.

PROFIT FROM PAIN

Perhaps after all the unpleasant things may have their value and that value may sometimes be greater than the good that comes quite sugar coated.

Anyway—It is odd that after Milton quarreled with his wife he should have written about hell and the fall of man through woman's disregard of law so brilliantly that "Paradise Lost," is the one great poem in English while "Paradise Regained" is a dull and prosy almost mediocre thing.

Or that Samuel Butler, intellectual youth with a clerical father who made his early life a burden, should have made his chief bid for lasting fame with "The Way of All Flesh," a biting satire on the English established church.

And too—Anatole France found the inspiration for "The Crime of Sylvestre Bonnard," the book which won the French Academy prize, in the boorish, vulgar behavior of a drunken uncle whose lascivious tales of adventures in the Napoleonic wars made France's mother blush for shame in her own house.

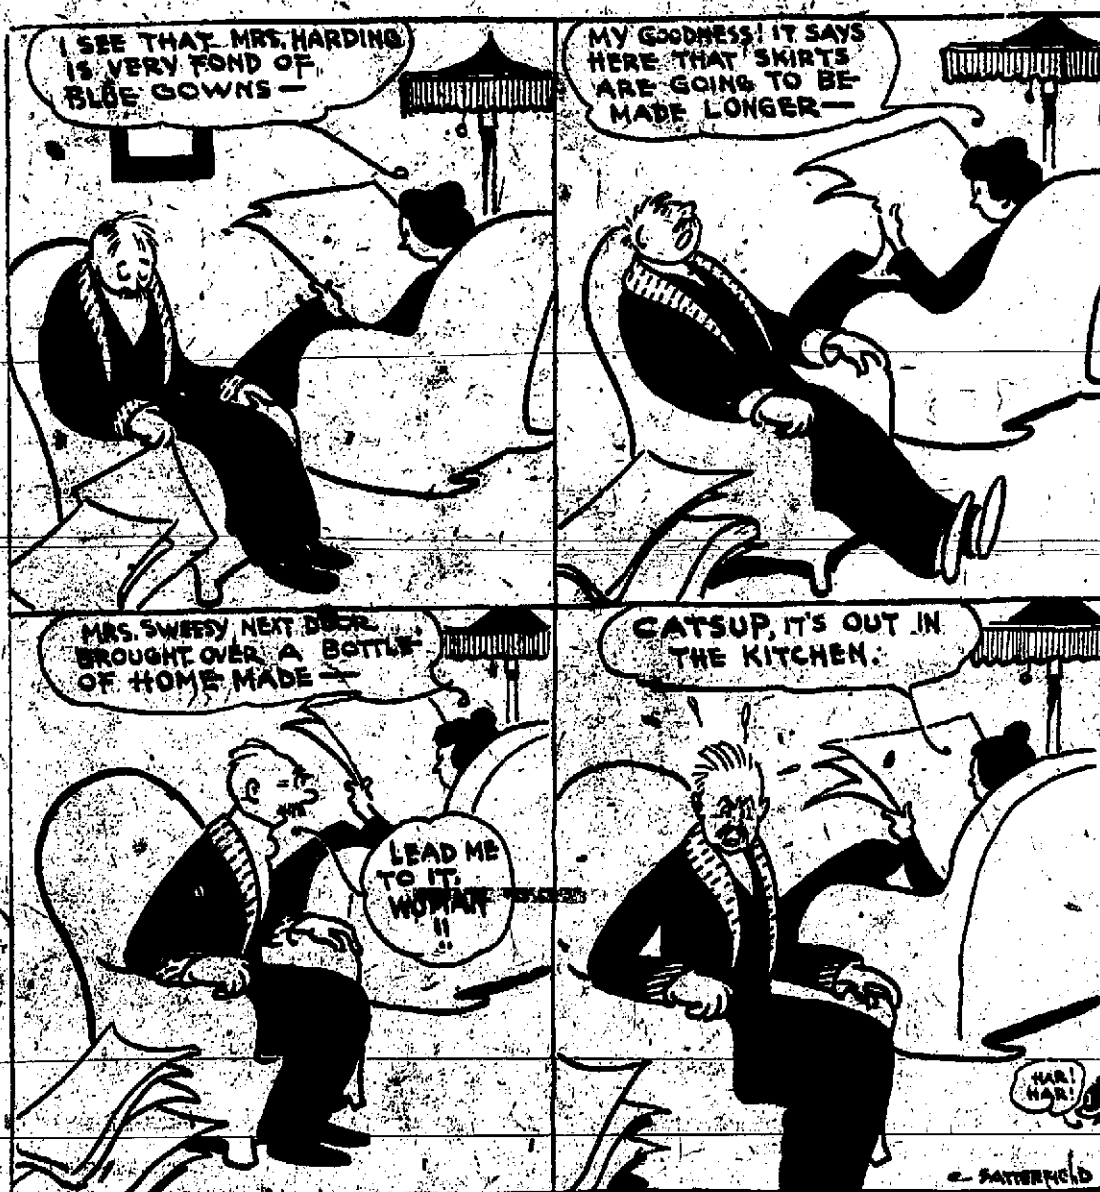

There was Montaigne who suffered terrible pain from a chronic disease most of his life and who in the intervals of agony wrote scores of moral essays the best of which deal with pain and death.

There are no more wonderful love letters in the world than those of Abelard and Heloise, whose lives were spent almost fully in abject sorrow and misery.

There are hundreds more—Maybe, there's a way to make capital from suffering, profit from pain and to turn troubles to the other fellow's advantage if not to your own.

Those scintillating minds that conferred with Harding must have shot a spark into the waste basket.

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS

By Oliver Roberts Barton.

"The Pelican" Once again the twins were ready to continue their journey to the South Pole. They were on a little ice island floating about in the ocean, but the Fairy Queen was beside them, looking fat and sleek and sleepy. "Put these children safely away in your bill," she commanded, "and carry them to shore safely. And mind you, don't you get hungry and forget that you have such a precious burden, and go hunting for fish. You'll be sure to drop them out if you do."

Put these children safely away in your beak," said the Fairy Queen to the Pelican, "and carry them ashore."

The pelican promised and tucked Nancy and Nick safely into his bill, pouch where they fitted quite nicely. Then away he flew. The ice island upon which they had been standing, and the Fairy Queen vanished at once. Far away, the bird with the little boy and girl in his beak, was a mere speck in the sky. Once again the twins were on their travels. (Copyright, 1921, N. E. A.)

ARE YOU JUST HANGING ON?

Too Many People Feel Themselves Slipping and About to Drop

People everywhere complain they are worn out, weary beyond expression, just hanging on. It is a most discouraging condition. The past few years have been a grilling experience. If your nerves seem to have gone to smash and the last drop of iron has apparently been burned out of the blood, get a $1.00 box of Heolo and note the effect. It may take a few days before you get up speed but the effect will be the greatest sensation you ever experienced. It will take you back to the years when you ate like a boy, slept like a log, worked hard, enjoyed it, gloried in it and tackled it like play, and got away with any task, no matter what. It gives a punch to your nerves, puts a pink hue on pallid cheeks, you feel great all over and look it. If you are thin it will build you up to regular weight, intensify the vital processes, give you quickness, alertness, and proof against exhaustion, no matter how hard the task. Ask any of the clerks at Finney's Drug Store, and any other leading drug stores. They have seen the results of Heolo with customers who were just hanging on, but are now among the healthiest people they know.

REMAINED KING OF HEAVEN

Amusing Hindu Fable Concerning the Gambler Who Succeeded in Outwitting Fate.

"What is written on the forehead must come to pass," this is one of the major articles in the Hindus' pessimistic credo. Yet even India has its unorthodox—Philistines who deny the power of fate. They offer, in scattered stories and proverbs, convincing evidence of their incredulity. A fable tells how two fishes named Pyrethrum and Readywit escaped the fishermen, but Readywit was caught and perished miserably. A rather unusual story tells how a tricky gambler outwitted fate. After death he went to the other world. There Yama, the Judge of the dead, said to him, "Gambler, on account of your crimes you will have to live a world-cycle in hell; but once on a time you gave a coin to a knower of the Supreme Soul; therefore you are to be Indra; the king of heaven, for a single day. So any whether you will take out first your period in hell or your period as Indra."

"I will take out first my period as Indra," answered the gambler. Then Yama sent him to heaven, and the gambler, having deposed Indra, made the gambler sovereign in his place. Employing his new power the 'ephemeral' Indra immediately called to heaven all his gambling friends and female companions; then he commanded the gods: "Carry as all in a moment to all the bathing places, both in heaven and on earth, and in the seven continents; and enter this very day into all the kings on earth, and bestow, without ceasing, great gifts so that we may receive merit according from this generosity." Thus the gods, old and by means of these holy observances, the gambler's sine were washed away and he obtained the rank of Indra permanently. When Yama was informed of the matter the next day he exclaimed in astonishment: "Dear me! This gambler has cheated us!"—Asia.

JOE JUDGE IS

ON MARKET

(N. E. A. Staff Special)
Washington, Feb. 7.—Joe Judge is up for trade. Outside of George S. Foster the Washington star is the best first baseman in the league.

The other six clubs could all use Judge to advantage.

The Yankees have offered Wally Pipp and "Honorus" Baker for him.

The Indians would swap "Doc" Johnston and George Burns in exchange for Judge, it is said.

The Red Sox with Stuffy McInnis are O. K. Stuffy is just as valuable to a club right now as Judge, but is getting old.

The Athletics have Griffin, a good fielder but a poor hitter.

Heilmann of Detroit is not in Judges class.

The White Sox will break in a recruit this year.

Griffin has two reasons for putting Judge on the market.

His star wants a fat salary increase. Then Griffin has another good first baseman in Brower, a homerun hitter. First base is the only position he can play.

There's not room for two good first basemen on one club.

The club that lands Judge will get a sugar ball player.

VETERANS' WAR MEMORIAL

Fighting Men of Three Wars Identified With Home Erected in Hoquiam, Washington.

With the recent completion of the American Veterans' building, a war memorial to fighting men of all American wars, the city of Hoquiam, Wash., has added to its architectural attractions a well-constructed and artistic edifice. The erection of the home was made possible by the activities of members of the American Legion, United Spanish War Veterans and Grand Army of the Republic.

The building is a three-story structure, in the downtown district. The ground floor will be occupied by a

Among the speakers at the formal dedication of the memorial was Robert A. Lefkowitz, field organizer of national headquarters of the Legion.

LEGION MEMBERS AID POLICE

Former Service Men in Various Cities Lend Assistance in Combating Crime Wave.

In conformity with the stand for law and order which the American Legion takes, thousands of Legionnaires are assisting the police in combating the crime wave, which has increased life and property in larger cities all over the country, according to reports received at Legion national headquarters.

New York department headquarters promptly offered to put 5,000 veterans on the streets to assist the police when the city of New York was hit by a series of robberies and kidnappings.

At its height, while during the Christmas season a number of Legion members aided in eliminating holdups in the shopping district by serving as guards in large retail stores and wholesale houses.

Five hundred St. Louis Legionnaires assisted the police in patrolling the city and rounding up suspicious characters. At St. Paul, Minn., the services of Legion members were volunteered in the formation of a series of network patrols.

Legion leaders explained that their organization in volunteering the services of its members for maintaining law and order did not imply that the police were inefficient, but that there was recognition that an abnormal situation existed under which the Legion was pledged to act if it wished to live up to the principles of its constitution.

WOODLOT WORTHY OF PROPER CARE

Like Other Farm Crops Trees Must Be Well Taken Care Of.

HARVEST SEASON IN WINTER

Two Types That Require Different Methods of Handling—Cutting Assists Greatly in Thinning and Cultivation.

Wheat, corn and potatoes require planting, care and cultivation. The crop of wood that grows on the farm woodlot requires much less care than these others, and in the majority of cases it is already growing on the farm when the farmer takes the land. Doubtless this fact makes it difficult for the farmer to see this crop in the same light in which he regards the others. Any other farm crop must be cared for or it will fail, and the stand of wood on the woodlot is no exception, though the progress of deterioration is not so rapid, and may extend over a long period of years.

A properly cared-for woodlot will furnish the farmer a cash crop at regular intervals and will always afford a supply of timber and fuel for home use.

The harvest season for the woodlot comes in the fall and in the winter, and the gathering of the harvest assists also in the thinning and cultivation of the crop.

Require Different Methods.
In general, there are two types of woodlots, says the United States Department of Agriculture, and each of them requires a different method of handling. The first type is characterized by the presence of old trees which dominate the stand. The second type is made up of a nearly even-aged stand of second growth.

In the first type the old trees may almost exclude the younger growth, or they may exist as a few scattered individuals throughout the stand. Such material is very likely to be losing value. The way to check the loss is to cut the old trees which have attained a mature growth and make room for a new stand of seedlings. A mature tree should be cut for the same reason that one cuts a crop of wheat when it is thoroughly ripened. No dead or diseased timber should be allowed to stand.

A woodlot, composed entirely of mature trees should not be cleared at once cutting. The work should be carried on in stages with sufficient interval between the cuttings to allow a new crop to come up. If this method is followed carefully, the farmer will always have a crop of wood ready for harvest on his woodlot. When the mature timber is removed in two or three cuttings, the first cutting should be crown cover somewhat, so that the leaves on the forest floor may decompose more rapidly and the germination of the seed be made more certain. The remaining trees become more windfirm, and, as a result of their crowns receiving more sunlight, they produce more seed. When the forest floor is in good condition the second cutting in a mature woodlot can be made during the winter following a heavy seed year. Neither the first nor the second cutting should be so severe as to allow an abundance of sunshine to reach the forest floor, since sunshine stimulates the growth of weeds and other trash.

Thinning the Stand.
In the second type of woodlot, where the farmer has an even-aged stand of second-growth timber, he may begin to harvest his crop by selecting first the undesirable species. Often in such stands, such trees as ironwood threaten to overtop, crowd out, or damage the more valuable species like white ash or tulip-poplar. Sprouts sometimes arise too thickly from the stump of trees recently cut, or the reproduction of a good species is too dense. In any of these cases some of the trees should be removed. This process is nothing more than the weeding out of the poorer individuals where they interfere with the better ones. In somewhat the same manner, a thinning cutting is used when, in from 15 to 20 years, the young stands reach a dense condition. The principle is exactly the same as that applied by the truck gardener who thins out his plants to secure the best development of a portion, rather than a poor development of the whole.

WILL FARMERS STRIKE, OHIO FACES ISSUE

Government Crop Statistician Sends Out Questionnaires

CUTTING OUT WHEAT

Many Will Confine Efforts to Forage Crops Instead—What They Say

Columbus, Ohio, Feb. 8.—Will there be a strike of Ohio farmers this year? Will the agrarian pursuits of one of the country's leading producing states be seriously curtailed, because farmers are angered at what they consider an unfair action between the prices of the things they grow and the things they have to have?

These questions are brought to the fore from answers to questionnaires from correspondents of the government crop statistician service received from 72 of the 88 counties in Ohio, by W. F. Callender, government crop statistician for Ohio.

One correspondent appended to his report, sent the farmer "he must go naked, drink pond water, and be content to read last year's almanac. It is enough to make angels weep."

The report shows a widespread demand on the part of farmers that the prices of farm machinery, lumber, fertilizer and other things which they have to buy, be reduced to put them on the level with reduced prices of farm products. A material curtailment of crop acreage this year may result from this dissatisfaction, Callender declares, because many farmers are frank in asserting they will try to get along with the old equipment rather than pay current prices for the new.

Uniform complaint against wages asked by farm laborers is noted in the answers. Some farmers, however, show optimism and believe they say the depression is only temporary. Following are some characteristic reports of the correspondents:

From District No. 2, consisting of 10 counties—"Farmers undecided as to the best thing to do. Some are cutting out wheat and oats and substituting forage crops. If prices of wearing apparel, fertilizer, farm machinery are not reduced to correspond to prices farmers are receiving for their products, many will raise just what they can use, letting the other fellow take care of himself. Agriculture has few incentives left."

From District No. 3, comprising 12 counties—"Farmers say they will cut least production in this district, at least 30 percent. High cost of help and materials, and low prices for crops are the reasons. We have no market for wool yet we pay from $50 to $100 for a suit of shoddy clothing."

From District No. 8, consisting of eight counties—"The slap in the face the farmer got only spurred him to more determined action. The farmer always is ready to respond to every call. Just as he got his fine crop ready for market after meeting high crop costs in everything, and working 16 hours a day, he got a sleepless night, backache, pain and black eyes for his toil. After his interest, taxes and other expenses are paid, he has not enough left to take his country paper. He must drink pond water, go naked and be content to read last year's almanac. It is enough to make angels weep."

Other reports contain much the same kind of complaints.

CATHRO READY TO "ANYTHING" FOR EOM; DROP CONTEMPT CASE

Mr. Chairman and gentlemen of the committee. I've been wondering whether your statement that I refused to testify is correct. I've been relying on the instructions of my superior officers. Nevertheless, I appear here prepared to submit to such examination as you wish to make. I've not refused but have pleaded with you to refrain from going into matters that affect public confidence. Banks are based on public confidence. No person will deal with a bank that makes a practice of divulging its relations with its customers with regard to loans and deposits. A violation of such confidence is classed as the lowest crime one can commit. It has been said I'm afraid. I'm not afraid. There are no deflections, no embezzlements, no so-called league papers, no post-dated checks in the bank and has not been. There is no reason why I should be afraid to produce any records.

Spokes of Conditions.

BY EFFIE SHANNON.
Effie Shannon, creator of love roles, says:
"Love is a desire for death, a passion for extinction that is found in the lowest animals right on up to man. A woman can love more than one man—but only imperfectly."
"Men and women don't seem to be able to stand trouble any more, stand it and make something out of it. They quarrel, part, and make up with someone else."
"All strong things are made of trouble."

BY FLOYD DELL.
Floyd Dell, author, says:
"The real point to be brought out is not the ease of falling in love, but the difficulty."
"The economic position in which women now find themselves has changed their demands on men. They no longer want the cave man type."
"The present-day ideal woman is the Narcissus and the ideal woman is the strong and independent."

BY SUSAN GLASPELL.
Susan Glaspell, author and playwright, says:
"Love is a misunderstanding between a man and a woman—started by the man."
"There is a possibility of a man and woman living together happily for life if their interests are the same—but not similar, if they never let the 'adventure' become dull, if they can put each in the other's place without losing their individuality."

BY UDDLEY DIGGES.
Uddley Digges, actor-impressionist, says:
"Love is the atonement for the impossible Beauty, if you get what I mean. Through love you realize what is unattainable, and leave it unattainable—through love you come to know what you cannot do, and what you can't be."
"Love is a form of creation every one is capable of."

BY HARRY KEMP.
Harry Kemp, tramp-poet and producer, says:
"You've got to give love an awfully long halter—and you've got to keep your hands off. Pulling and nagging and fussing will kill love so soon that you have no time to buy flowers before the corpse has been buried."
"A woman approaches love with her eyes open, and dismisses it with her eyes shut."
"A man—just reverse it."

BY HONA TULOP.
Hona Tulop, authoress, theater manager and editor of New York's leading Hungarian daily, says:
"Love gives you the hope of the Mysterium Tomorrow, and the courage to face it."
"Those who have seen it, carry the light in their eyes, see it one love in a lifetime, or many; and those who have seen it not, walk in darkness. Love, the reason for all Wills."

In prices this year that we are emerging from a period of deflation. He said some banks had closed and that he felt anything done now that would disturb public confidence. He said that Twin City banks realized this condition and he related the story of a conference he participated in there in November. He said the Bank of North Dakota did business with 800 or 900 banks in the state. He said that neither he nor the Federal Reserve Commission would become a party willingly to anything that would disturb public confidence. He said newspaper men have had access to reports and "having no regard for the consequences have used them in such a way as to destroy public confidence and do great harm."

He asked that the committee not confine him to testimony as to a few banks in the questioning as to favoritism, but to consider all 800. He said that he had made the statement that deposits had been made substantially in the localities from which they came and he said that the committee must consider relations of all of them to prove the correctness of this statement. He offered the committee a special invitation to come in the bank and look over the records.

Brinton on Stand.
J. W. Brinton invited himself into the hearing by writing a letter to the committee in which he made serious charges, and he then received an invitation to mount the witness stand.

In putting him on the stand Attorney Sullivan said that the charges made by Brinton in the communication were so serious that he ought to be put under oath and if they were not true he would be guilty of perjury.

The courtroom was crowded and Brinton utilized the opportunity to cast aside remarks which drew some laughter from the people in the courtroom.

Brinton had said that during a period of about forty days in 1919 about $380,000 had been sent to the Scandinavian-American bank. He claimed that money loaned to this institution was used to finance "dummy" corporations, so-called "league" enterprises.

He claimed that there was a bitter controversy as to whether so-called league papers should be taken by the Bank of North Dakota and he asserted that he and Jim Waters opposed it. Waters saying: "They're putting me up against the postmaster. He asserted that during these controversies he and Waters frequently opposed Mr. Lemke and Mr. Townley."

He said that at one time he was given samples of this paper to take to Townley in St. Paul to argue against the policy.

A statement purporting to be that of Transit Manager Snyder of the Bank of North Dakota showing a record of transfers to the Scandinavian-American bank was read into the record. He asserted that the Scandinavian-American bank was purchased by Hastings, the "league financial manager." He said control was obtained after conferences in St. Paul in which the members of the National Nonpartisan league, Mr. Townley, Mr. Lemke and Mr. H. B. Townley, were present.

of this policy," the witness was asked.
"No."

Brinton, during his testimony, claimed that Townley said he wanted Cathro in the Bank of North Dakota "because he has agreed to sail with us."

Defends Townley.
He referred to an alleged shortage of $10,000 to $12,000 in the bank funds put out in the Sisseton trust and he defended Townley, declaring he didn't believe Mr. Townley had anything to do with the shortage. At another time he defended Governor Frazier from his charges saying "he thought he was 'misled'."

Regarding the alleged shortage he said that the Sisseton Trust in which he was a leading light was ordered by Lottus, etc. to replace the money.

Brinton said he gave the company check for about $11,000 on the Mercantile bank of Minneapolis.
"Did you have any funds in the bank?" asked Mr. Sullivan.
"No," replied Brinton. He then claimed that Lemke and Lottus knew he didn't have any funds there. He asserted that the arrangement was made to show that the Scandinavian-American bank was all right in the supreme court hearing.

Pressed by Mr. Sullivan for documentary evidence he said he'd "love to go to St. Paul to get them."

Brinton was excused at noon, to be called later.

Policy of the Bank.
During his testimony Brinton outlined what he called the policy of the Bank of North Dakota with respect to providing funds for "league enterprises."

In discussing the policy of the bank he said:
"In my conversation with Mr. Townley, I learned that Mr. Townley was very anxious to have Mr. Cathro in the bank and I referred to a certain position that the league had taken challenging Mr. Cathro's position as a good leaguer. I will admit to the committee that I played politics when I was in the league. I am not ashamed of it. I have been in politics quite a while. I can't help it."

"When Mr. Townley made the expression 'We want Mr. Cathro in that bank because he has agreed to sail'—with us. And of course in the conversation that followed he explained to me that they were going to use that bank to assist in financing the National Nonpartisan league."

Brinton: The Bank of North Dakota, and that was where the money was stored and there was continual jangling between Mr. Waters and I on one side and Mr. Lemke and Mr. Townley, and I presume Mr. Cathro on the other. As to the use of this money in the bank, and they being in control of the national committee, why they dominated it, and Mr. Lemke being the attorney of the industrial commission he represented the industrial commission and was simply backed of course.

Mr. Freeman: Do you make the statement that this was one of the determining factors that went into the appointment of Mr. Waters and Mr. Cathro as officers of the bank, that they would in some sense lend the authority of their position to these transactions?

Brinton: Well, that is a double question. Easy that this controversy and row in the bank of North Dakota was because of the determined policy on the part of league leaders, I am not saying that Mr. Cathro did it. But I assume, as an intelligent man, that he agreed to it because he was out of the bank and Mr. Waters is out of the bank. And the Scandinavian-American bank, has some $450,000 in funds and I want to say further, that I have charged Mr. Lemke and Mr. Cathro with embezzlement and they haven't manhood enough to pull me into court and I charge them today.

Mr. Chairman: Just a moment Mr. Brinton: Well, he's challenging my correctness of taking that position.

Brinton: I have no objection to any one asking me questions, but I don't like to have anyone insinuate that I was in any kind of an arrangement to defraud the state of North Dakota.

Freeman: Well I apologize, I just wish to arrive at the facts.

Brinton: I want to say that I have brought enough trouble on myself on account of this row. I have been called a crook and if I had stayed out of it I probably could have got a good appointment. I might even gotten a house.

To "Sail With Us."

Sullivan: Now you have indicated that Townley himself had told you that Cathro had agreed to sail on this policy you have told us about.

Brinton: Yes sir.

Q. Now do you mean to say that Mr. Lemke, the attorney general of this state, knew of that policy and approved of it?

A. Not only knew of it and approved of it, but he participated in it and advised it.

Sullivan: Did you have any funds in the Mercantile State Bank of Minneapolis at that time?

Brinton: No sir. Well I had an account there, a personal account there, but not very much money in it.

Sullivan: Did you disclose to these other men that you referred to Mr. Lottus and Mr. Lemke, that you didn't have that amount of money in the bank at Minneapolis?

Brinton: They suggested that I write the check on that bank.

Sullivan: Well did you tell them you didn't have that amount of money in that bank?

A. Yes I told them.

Q. Well the check wasn't good at that time?

A. Well they seemed to think it was all right.

Q. Had you made any arrangements with the Mercantile State Bank of Minneapolis at that time in a way that they would "honor" your checks for that amount of money.

A. No I hadn't.

Q. Well did Mr. Lemke and Mr. Lottus know that you had no such arrangement? A. I think so, in fact it was explained to me that they would carry that check as a cash item so they could make their show-up to the supreme court and I could raise the money and later put it in the bank and make it good and they could hold the check until I got the money down here.

GUILTY OF ARSON.
Fessenden, N. D., Feb. 8.—John Keller, found guilty in district court here of burning a grain separator near Harvey last fall, was sentenced to three years in the state penitentiary. Upon announcement of the verdict, Keller broke down and confessed, implicating his father, Fred Keller, and Nels Nelson, separator man on the Keller rig. He also exonerated John Helzelman, on trial simultaneously for the crime, who was granted liberty under bonds and a new trial, which with that of Fred Keller and Nelson, will be held at Carrington this month.

ELTINGE.

Fannie Hurst's greatest story, "Humoresque," has been adapted to the screen and will be shown at the Eltinge theatre. It is a tale of youthful genius and mother love with the scene laid chiefly in New York's Ghetto and Fifth avenue. Miss Hurst as is well known is right at home in portraying with a realistic touch the characters of New York's humbler inhabitants, and "Humoresque" is said to contain intense heart appeal. Humor and pathos are deftly mingled in the picture.
